November 2011

Greetings! I hope your semester is going well.

I have highlighted below a couple of resources I thought you may find interesting as well as some library services you may not be aware of. Click on the links for more information or give me a call.

As always, send me your requests for library materials. Do you love (or hate) the idea of ebooks? Take the poll below and let us know!

Best,
Beki

World Data Bank - World Development Indicators Online

World Bank Group provides a comprehensive set of data on living standards around the globe—some 2,000 indicators, including hundreds that go back 50 years. This site contains the full World Development Indicators (WDI), Global Development Finance (GDF), and Africa Development Indicators (ADI) as well as several other World Bank databases. Data includes social, economic, financial, natural resources, and environmental indicators. To access the database click here .

Each guide is created by librarians for the students and faculty at University of South Carolina. Don't know where to start? The guide will lead you to books, journal articles, internet resources, and more on whatever topic you are researching. Take a look!

eRequest

Use 'eRequest' for book requests. Remember to continue submitting requests for books you would like the library to add to the collection.
