Hungry 1956: Our Revolution

Following World War II, Hungary was transformed into a communist state under the dictatorship of Matyas Rakosi and the Hungarian Communist Party - until the Hungarian revolution in 1956. The revolution brought together people from all walks of life: factory-workers, students, peasants, writers, soldiers and politicians - men and women - who were spurred to action by years of living under the tyranny of the Soviet-backed Stalinist regime. This documentary creates a complex tapestry of eye-witness accounts and evocations, supported by powerful archive footage and photographs, to give viewers a real sense of what it was like to be part of a truly popular movement.

El Salvador: Portraits in a Revolution

This film documents the grassroots nature of revolutionary democracy and the courage of the ordinary people of El Salvador. In the 1980's, thousands of Salvadorans were forced to flee their homeland to refugee camps in Honduras. After nine years in the camps, they made a decision unprecedented in refugee history. Against their government's wishes, they returned home as communities while the war was still raging. Against the backdrop of the
