We want to hear from you! You will soon be receiving an email from Tom McNally, Dean of Libraries, with a link to an important faculty survey. This survey focuses on research, teaching, and publishing, and it seeks your perspective on a range of topics, including how you engage with and perceive the library. In particular, the survey will help the library gain insight into how our faculty members work in a rapidly changing and increasingly digital environment.

We hope you will take a few minutes from your busy schedule to assist us!

Web of Science®

Recently Thomas Cooper Library's subscription to Web of Science was expanded to include a number of new databases and extended years of coverage for existing databases. Check out our improved Web of Science here or by visiting <http://library.sc.edu>.

workings of a complex human being who saw the world in ways not typical of his peers. Born in Pavlavosk Russia in 1897, Vishniac pursued studies in biology, zoology and oriental art. As a young man his interest in microscopes and photography led to his contributions to the early development of microphotography. In 1920 he immigrated to Berlin where he became an avid amateur photographer and continued his biological studies through the microscope.
