Bon Jour! I hope autumn is treating you well, and all of your students are thoughtful, insightful, and awake. The library is already busy, but just a reminder that our study rooms are available to be reserved if you need a space to meet, either with colleagues or students. And I am always happy to meet with you or your students, if you need assistance with research projects or assignments. Speaking of research, the library offers workshops on getting started with Zotero, the free citation management tool.

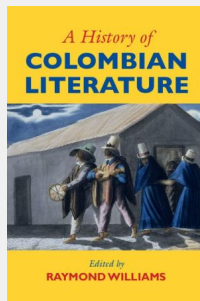

Best,
Sharon

Institutional Repository

Scholar Commons is the institutional repository for USC. It's designed to preserve, collect and disseminate the research and scholarship of the University of South Carolina. You are encouraged to submit your open access material in all formats to the repository. Then search open access publications from 400 other affiliated Institutional Repositories from around the world.
